

Cisco Umbrella is one of the first things we install on our company issued laptops before sending out to an employee. This gives us peace of mind that while employees are remote, the equipment can still be protected and adhere to our security policies. Our help desk staff has also seen a reduction in malware or PUA alerts which means less time removing bad software or reimaging laptops. This is especially helpful for remote staff where they cannot physically bring their laptop to the IT department to be diagnosed.
