" TestRail has definitively added value to our company. It gave us the chance to continue expanding while maintaining the quality level of our products and services. How was this possible being such a small team? This was achieved due to this tool. In the beginning, where one was usually in charge of every project, TestRail gave that person the possibility to design test cases according to non-specified requirements and then assigned their execution, even to new stakeholders, saving the "Knowledge transfer" time and writing the requirements somewhere accessible by all members of the company and very easy to use and integrate.
