

We use our tool (TMX) to integrate with many different automation tools out there that our customers are using. On numerous occasions, we've been able to recommend an automation tool for our customers just starting out in automation. Ranorex is the one we recommend most. It is easy to use and ties in very well with our test management/keyword tool (TMX). It has VERY strong Object recognition for UI's and customizable output reports. It just works where many other automation tools don't. Cheers!
