

A Vice President of Cybersecurity at a large enterprise financial services company would be very likely to recommend Kenna Security for this reason:

“ I’m a big fan of how simple it was to connect Kenna to Rapid7 and Veracode to see all vulnerabilities in one place. The ease of dashboarding and building reports has already started to show benefits and we haven’t been using it that long. I see tons of potential to actually make a dent in vulnerability management where it used to feel like a problem that would exist forever.
