

Case Study

We observed some unexpected traffic levels across an intercontinental core network link. Using Kentik, we were able to analyze the traffic at its point of ingress into the network, track it to its egress, and dimension it by destination ASN. The problem was then revealed to be a prefix leak from one of our transit customers. Without Kentik, this would have been much more time-consuming to identify.

— Engineer, Small Business Telecommunications Services Company

Source: Engineer, Small Business Telecommunications Services Company

TechValidate
by SurveyMonkey

Published: Oct. 9, 2019 TVID: C4F-81A-97A