

The one thing remote work hasn't quite nailed down is replicating the feeling of being in a conference room with your thought partners. It's difficult to jam a meeting into a deck or word doc format without losing your train of thought and getting lost in the weeds. Mural has made it easy to set up a framework for collaboration and allow people to contribute in their own time. I love that I can take a train of thought that may not have a destination yet, lay it all out there, add questions or the speedbumps I'm getting stuck on, and then have a colleague weigh in and help me sort it out.
