Complete End-to-End Network Monitoring and Reporting Bolsters Telcom's Service Performance

An engineer of a large enterprise telecommunications services company is very likely to recommend[*] NETSCOUT for the following reason:

> " It's so much easier for me to monitor our network holistically or globally instead of logging into each of the devices. Report will tell me what's wrong with the network every morning as well. Also, I can create monthly reports and have them emailed to me at the beginning of every month, and that is invaluable.