In a few sentences, can you share a story of how Trello has helped increase productivity and employee satisfaction?

It's simple really. Trello has allowed my sales team to effectively communicate with our marketing team on different initiatives created. The real-time updates, as well as the due dates have helped create a time-sensitive and easy-flowing work environment. Everyone has the same goal to put out the best work possible. Trello has helped us maintain and improve our expectations, even while working from home.

What has been the sentiment and feedback around colleagues and employees using/implementing Trello?

I'm a bit more new to my organization, but from what I know- people really enjoy Trello. It's ability to keep everyone on the same organized page (board) has helped us continue to work together, while working from home at the same time.
